If you aren't part of the Mob Figure Nation, it's time to get in the game. to various types of pathogens. The size of the bacterial cells dictates the endocytosis and the internalization efficiency of bacteria. The physical and chemical characteristics of the endocytic material may also affect the internalization efficiency. While bacterial shape and deformability influence the internalization efficiency [pone.0047125-Berg1], [pone.0047125-Rink1], internalization mechanisms employed by host cells are not fully understood. Recent studies have suggested that the internalization of bacterium may occur via the process of innate immune response, such as phagocytosis, immunological synapse, membrane ruffling and endocytosis [pone.0047125-McDonald1]. In the present study, we observed that the MRSA PKH2-labeled cells in the co-culture system were engulfed into A549 cells by membrane ruffling like phenomenon, suggesting that endocytosis occurred in our co-culture system. In order to investigate the direct effects of LPS and PKH2-labeled MRSA on A549 cells, we prepared MRSA PKH2-labeled cell suspension and performed fluorescence microscopy observations. Since the coated bacteria were not removed before observation, we were able to observe the direct effects of LPS on A549 cells. Notably, significant decreases in the fluorescence of A549 cells were observed. This result was consistent with a previous report, suggesting that endotoxin molecules can induce the production of pro-inflammatory cytokines and reactive oxygen species and consequently cause the pathological changes in infected lungs [pone.0047125-Matsuzaki1]. Furthermore, we also compared the effects of LPS and
