Kung Fu vs. Jujitsu is back, and this time it's for real. It's been 10 years since the last edition of Kung Fu vs. Jujitsu ended with the release of the movie Kung Fu Hustle. And with success came the inevitable loss of face for the rest of the martial art community. And so, a peace treaty was signed and for the next 10 years, martial artists from all over the world worked to prove that they were the true Kung Fu masters. Now, a group of the world's best martial artists have been called back to teach their peoples' an old-school Kung Fu system like they knew it, 10 years on from the last fight. The fight starts this Friday (June 28th) at 6pm BST, 1pm EST. MANDATORY SPECTACULAR TRAINING! (NOTHING LESS THAN SIX HOURS) In order to execute one of the best moves in Kung Fu the correct way, and to execute it 100% correctly, you must start training the exact same way every time, or your move will not be as powerful as it could be. Above all: don't spend more than six hours training one specific move. Anything else than this can not only affect your performance, but it can also negatively affect your health. You can only train one move at a time. Training moves also affects your speed, which increases after every move. So, you have to be very careful to not train two moves at a time. Very Important: 1. You may use ANY OUTFIT without penalty. It only changes your stats. 2. The fight is entirely LIVE. There will be no interruption of your training. 3. You may use a handicap to practice your move, at any point in the fight. 4. You are more than welcome to discuss your results after the fight with someone else from the group. We all train the same way, so it would help to know which moves you used. 5. You're under no obligation to tell us what move you used. All information about your moves will be released at the end of the fight. 6. You're under no obligation to remember your move. The stats that are awarded to you at the end of the fight is as close as we can make to your move. 7. You may change the outfit you're using at any c9d1549cdd wine Annie Amberwine was born in Langton, New Zealand, on 5 March 1851. She married William John Dalling on 20 June 1873, when she was just 18 years old. She was the second of six children, and, at the time of her wedding, must have had been well into the skilled employ of a Miss Newman. It was after Mr Dalling's death from peritonitis on 5 March 1874 that her life changed. On his instructions, she willed one of his monies to a women's sewing circle in Langton, and by 1877, when she cut down her savings, she had started selling her embroidery work to raise capital. Her first venture was a gold brooch that she sold at auction. Exceeding the hopes of a fancy-dress circle at Cambridge University, she sold 100 of them. However, the sales were beginning to show a downward trend, and her next venture, a silver gilt tiara with a purple nasturtium wreath, was not a great success either. In the following year, her 200-piece next-to-nothing sale of silver brooches brought her in £450, whereupon she made and embroidered a 60-piece sale of brooches, earning her more than enough to take over where she had left off. Annie Amberwine's role as a member of the Cambridge University Fancy Dress Tour was coming to an end, and the appointment of one of her competitors, Miss Dorothy Shirley Bruce, rather than the expected one, had greatly reduced her number of orders. However, in 1881 she joined a cheaper outfit, the Dividend Singers' (i.e. a group of 'divorced' spinsters, widows, or old maids), and figured among its 'Graceful Maidens', the Dividend Star Court, and the Rose Company. By 1883, she was a leather-dressress to a silver-lace shop, and was doing handwork mostly, then ivorywork, and a bit of weaving for a customer who emigrated. By now she had changed her spelling of 'Amberwine' to 'Amberwell'. Eight months after her headstrong letter of resignation from the Cambridge Fancy Dress Tour, she was appointed to the staff of White Sales, worth 10 pounds per annum. She was an outspoken critic of his competitor, Doreen Knapman-Moule, but found herself co-part

Created for the first time in the history of video games, Europa Universalis IV is a historical grand strategy video game for Windows PC where you will play as one of five historic European countries: England, France, Spain, Denmark and Sweden. In this title, you will drive your country through almost four centuries, until the dawn of the Modern Age. Gameplay Set in a World of Empires: Europa Universalis IV allows you to create your own path to world domination. As history unfolds, game events occur, such as political revolutions, religious changes, natural disasters, and technological improvements that may alter the course of the entire world. It is only by forging close alliances with powerful nations, repelling your enemies and conducting diplomacy that you can dominate the world. Unique Features of Europa Universalis IV: - New Era System - A completely new system for managing historical events and game time. - More than 100 Historical Events that can occur during gameplay. - New Era Chapter System. - More than 200 new Technologies. - New Gameplay Mechanism, allowing you to shape the world of today. The result will be the first-ever true simulation of world history, with fully realized nations, leaders and political systems that interact with each other, all governed by laws and affected by the decisions made by their citizens. Europa Universalis IV features a rich storyline, with over 300 historical characters and events, many of them completely original. It also features a new 'Era' system, where your country will make significant or irreversible changes to its civilization depending on choices made during gameplay. The Total War series Europa Universalis IV is the latest title in the Total War series. It builds upon the proven Total War formula by introducing a host of innovative features never before seen in a Total War game. The game is a spiritual successor to Creative Assembly's Total War: ATTILA, and features the same genre as that game and its previous expansion, CRUSADER.
