Rule No.1: Don't Panic! This is a minor game issue and it can be improved. It is part of the game loop and it is user-friendly. Rule No.2: Watch your life bar It is important to watch your life bar and make sure you don't hit the end. Rule No.3: Don't play "death games" Use the death mechanic to provide the players with an advantage in game. How many kills did you make? How many times did you start over? Now you're ready for the next round! When I was watching my son play the game, he was making too many mistakes and restarting too often. If I was playing against him, I wouldn't allow him to restart again! Another thing you don't want to do is playing a death game in order to score points. Rule No.4: Play to Win! A game needs to be fun and fun to win. Too many and it's not fun, too few and it's not fun. Rule No.5: This is a survival game If you don't start a new game, you're probably dead already! Rule No.6: Never forget who you are I don't want to score points and become a greasy monkey in that I didn't step back and play as a happy animal. I don't want to kill other animals. I want to be the one animal! Game Design Junkie- Items There are three types of items: Food, Toilet paper and Muscle Mass. First, a food item is a literal item you can eat for energy and health. It doesn't matter what type you eat, it only matters that it's something you can eat. For example, any flower you find would be a food item. Second, a toilet paper item is a protection item that can be used to heal. I bought a lot of toilet paper when I was playing the game and I was surprised because they were so useful. Third, a muscle mass item is a protection item that allows you to speed up your attacks. For example, I used to prefer to run everywhere just to survive. But once I used a speed item, I'm killing everything fast. Game Design Junkie- Weapons There are six types of weapons: A gun, bow and arrow, crossbow, knife, hand grenade

On Youtube :) The Philadelphia Soundtrack Film band was released for the first time on vinyl in England in 1983 on a recording called 'Physical Phenomena' and we played the title track on the B-Side. By the end of 1984 we had released this song (which we had first written over four years previously) on our second album called 'Delicious Innertube', and although I'm supposed to be writing this one, I'm going to do it in different order so we get the one which came out first. [more] tiger's - 'Dixie Woodland' Soundtrack On Youtube This track was recorded by us when we made our second album called 'Delicious Innertube'. We didn't have any of these vocals included on the original running order of the 'Delicious Innertube' album but because it was produced by Perry in South Wales, we had to get them to fit in. These summertime lyrics were written by Taylor Moore, the bass player in 'The Smiths', and I don't think he would have been at the Woodstock Festival or would have had the experience of telling himself not to think about the birds and the bees and other similar things. It was just one of the niceties that the Record company paid for because they sold the albums through Virgin Records I guess and thought that there was a bit of a market for a song that summer when they weren't making any records except for Harry Nilsson, so they put it in with another track called 'She's Strange'. I think it's quite laid back and calming but being pregnant it may not have that effect on her, but it is a nice song and I'm quite proud of it. I don't know if we will ever do any gigs with this track, but here it is anyway. [more] Anna-k - 'Riding Alone' Soundtrack On Youtube This was released on our third album called 'I Can Live Without It' and the band are still around. We only ever played about 20 gigs before we split up so we still have some unfinished adventures. Anna-k were a band I quite enjoyed on stage and got asked to do some radio sessions like 'Liquid Sky' and stuff like that. We also released a four track single called 'Looking for Love' (which had a different track listing to the 12" single) and in the end it didn't really take off and a lot of disappointment came from this and I just had to wait until

World of Guns is a first-person shooter for virtual reality. You are on a mission to liberate a prison, with hundreds of other brave rebels, from the dictatorship of one man; meet the characters like you've never seen them before. Interactive environments, animated cutscenes, character interaction - everything is rendered in virtual reality, and it feels as good as it sounds. Create your own custom load-out. The role-playing shooter features up to four single-player campaign missions, hours of gameplay and, most importantly, completely customizable outfits and weapons. With up to twenty customizable guns (including the rare machine gun SIG SG 550S) with five magazines each (up to 10 rounds per magazine), every mission will let you choose the hero of your choice. As a second mode, World of Guns presents you with the challenging "Recruit" mode. The enemy is stronger than ever, and you have to push yourself to the limits. Fight your way through increasingly difficult multi-level challenges to unlock new weapons. In World of Guns, weapons are much more than just accessories. With each weapon, you customize your own load-out, and that's one of the main attractions of this game. Every weapon comes with its own magazine, and choosing the right weapon for the enemy will give you the upper hand. You can also use a character, because the character will follow you on the battlefield. He can use various weapons such as pistols or machine guns and the exact type of weapon depends on your current situation. Each weapon has a unique utility value, which allows you to use the right weapon at the right time. The character can use a grenade if he is in close quarters, and he can attack the enemy as a third-person shooter or be a stealth character when you need him. Features: Up to four single-player campaign missions 20 different weapons Five player classes Custom outfits and weapons Customization of the load-out Multiple light and sound effects Navigation with a gyroscope Enemy AI Multiplayer (pass the controller) Elevated view / Third-person view How to play: Step 1: Your 360 controller needs to be connected to the Xbox One.
