A: If you want to get the full version of the game, you can do this by downloading a pirated version of the game. This way, the game will not be removed from the App store. However, sometimes the developers of these games remove the pirated versions from the App Store, so you need to find out if this game is still available or not. And even if you get hold of a pirated version, you should play it carefully. As stated in the following blog, if you use a pirated version of the game, you will get a white screen of death when you start it. Disappointed by the decision not to pass the Josephine Scanlan (Connelly) Bill that would allow critically ill patients to be discharged from an emergency Department (ED) and given respite care in their own home, members of CERT attended a press conference with Medical Association President Rossana

Zwyer in Dublin on Monday. Speaking alongside Ms Zwyer, medical practitioner Dr Maria Caffrey who has attended a great number of unresponsive patient deaths in emergency departments and Dr Roddy Broderick, Chief Executive of the Irish Hospitals' Emergency Department Organisation said the most recent figures show 100 people every week die after attending emergency departments. They expressed disappointment that after months of work in the Oireachtas, the Josephine Scanlan (Connelly) Bill which would allow critically ill patients in an emergency department to be discharged to respite care in their own home was not passed last week. Dr Caffrey was one of the first to call for E.D. doctor to take a stand. "We would appeal to E.D. doctors to break their isolation and be drawn into the discussion because at the end of the day, it's the doctor working in the E.D. who is seeing what is happening with the patient but also not the doctor. Citing a number of instances where E.D. doctors have not taken a stand in such circumstances Dr Caffrey stated: "There was a case where an elderly woman with a history of coronary disease and COPD died and the family were pleading for her to be taken to her bedside but the E.D. doctor didn't want to discuss it and she died in the E.D." E.D. is supposed to provide emergency care not long term healthcare she pointed out. “There are many patients who develop complications in their hospital bed and are going to die and there is very little that can be done for them. “If their families can be seen in the week or fortnight that they are in hospital, they can arrange for a carer to come in to provide support to the family and they may not have to say goodbye. “It’s no bad thing for them to be discharged to hospice or, in some circumstances
