The story of “Hearthstone: Heroes of Warcraft” In the world of Warcraft, a rift has appeared in the mortal world. It is a portal made of blood, forged by the magic of an ancient race: the Naga. The Alliance is facing destruction by the Horde, who have stolen the Moonwell, the source of the city’s power. The Alliance has a plan: They will attempt to close the rift with the legendary Golden Blades of the legendary High Chieftain Ulduar, the artifact with which the Alliance hopes to destroy the Naga. Introduction

Mystery is fun: mystery items and the Ace of Spades - Part 1

"Well, the Ace of Spades has been 'saving' the world and possessing people for a long time already. Some time ago I received an envelope addressed to me from 'The Firm.'" Thus begins the tale of Ace of Spades and how she became a key figure for you to obtain the power of mystery items.

One other note: many of Ace of Spades' lines are based on actual conversations from various people I've known over the

Q: PHP array_merge and array_values I have this: $first = array('test' => 'hello'); $second = array('test2' => 'world'); $third = array_merge($first, $second); $fourth = array_values($third); var_dump($first, $second, $third, $fourth); And it's outputting: array(3) { ["test"]=> string(5) "hello" ["test2"]=> string(5) "world" ["test"]=> string(5) "hello" } array(3) { ["test"]=> string(5) "hello" ["test2"]=> string(5) "world" ["test"]=> string(5) "hello" } array(3) { ["test"]=> string(5) "hello" ["test"]=> string(5) "hello" ["test"]=> string(5) "hello" } array(3) { ["test"]=> string(5) "hello" ["test"]=> string(5) "hello" ["test"]=> string(5) "hello" } Why do I have the double values in the $third array? And what do array_values and array_merge do exactly? I understand array_merge has to do with merging arrays. But what does array_values do exactly? A: array_merge merges all elements of two arrays into a new array with their corresponding keys. `array_values` produces a new array without the keys from the original array.

array_merge(array('test' => 'hello'), array('test' => 'hello2')); // Outputs:

array('test' => 'hello')
```

```
array_values(array('test' => 'hello', 'test2' => 'hello2')); // Outputs: array('test2' =>
'hello2')

A: These two functions when combined are called `array_walk`.

array_walk(array, $function_name, $arguments);

What this function does is that it will walk the passed array, calling your function `$function_name` with each element in the array as it goes. What you have here is, in my opinion, an example of not writing idiomatic code. You should almost never use `array_merge`. You almost certainly
