Trending Now · Shooting video and filming a wedding audio video will cost you between $800 and $3,000. Here's how to shoot video for your wedding on a budget. As well as capturing the big moments, VideoPress makes it simple to create video stories from existing footage. You can also export your finished project as a DVD or online video. After you've had your event over, you can later edit the video, or burn it to disc and share on YouTube, Facebook or other social media. As well as supporting a range of video formats like MP4, WMV and MOV, VideoPress makes it easy to add text, replace images, trim or split your video. You can combine the footage to form a story or look back on your special day. 5 Stunning DIY Wedding Videography Ideas Wedding photos are great, but they're not exactly the most effective advertising. By capturing all the major moments and tweaking them for posterity, you can turn your wedding into a short film that everyone's talking about. 1. Keep it real Let's face it, wedding films rarely present the couple's wedding day in a realistic way. Take a look at the video below from Color's website - you can tell that they've had way too much to drink before the ceremony, and don't remember a lot of the big moments. This can make wedding films seem a little over-produced. One of the best ways to capture the emotions of your wedding day is to use footage from the day itself. Make sure you're capturing the right moments - don't just edit together your playlist or wedding video at the end. Snapping away a few shots on your smart phone before or after the ceremony will give you a unique look at the big day. Even if you don't have the budget to hire a videographer, there are still plenty of affordable ways to capture your wedding day. You could spend a few hundred on a Canon T2i with a good lens, or £400 on a GoPro or even £80 on a smartphone. These cameras will be perfect for capturing the moments on your big day. Most people don't even really realise that they are unique, yet people around the globe make thousands of wedding videos every year. You can use the footage from other people' 6d1f23a050
