It is worth adding that the installation media could be used to upgrade an existing installation. Any new data or new catalogs from a different version are not overwritten. For example, the installation media for ArcView 9.3 can be used for ArcView 9.5. The installer ignores the installation media when there's an existing installation. It will take the existing database and catalogs and add the new catalogs and data to them. The same applies to ArcView 9.1 with ArcView 9.3. This allows you to upgrade your ArcView installation without losing your data. This does not work in reverse to downgrade an ArcView installation from 9.3 to 9.1. To get the best performance, we recommend that you use the Windows boot-up disk or DVD. On macOS, the ArcView program name is ArcMap, the folder is in the "Applications/ArcMap.app" folder. With the new 'Summer'(ish) time range, I'll be doing a lot of work on older images that need to be enhanced. Recently I took some time to do a cleanup of some of my older images and did some touch ups on a few new images. Not only was there the challenge of attempting to resave at 800x600 and trying to make the changes I had intended, I also realized that there are more images from all years to go through. So here is an example of the progress I made, on a couple recent images. Enjoy! 5ec8ef588b
